Soils and Crops to Be Topic at Last Day of Farmers' Week at College Here.

Tomorrow will conclude the Farmers Week program at the State Teachers College. A motion picture show will be given tonight at the College and the visitors to Farmers Week may obtain tickets from R. A. Kinnaird.

Tomorrow's program is on soils and crops and the speakers are well-known resident professors at the Missouri College of Agriculture. The program:

10 a. m.—"Alfalfa Culture," Prof. C. A. Helm.

11 a. m.—"The Use of Legumes in Soil Maintenance," Prof. M. F. Miller.

1:30 p. m.—"Seed and Cultural Practices in North Missouri," Mr. Helm.

2:30 p. m.—"Erosion and Its Control in Northwest Missouri," Prof. Miller.

Talks on the proper care and feeding of a sow at farrowing time and the breeding up of sheep in Missouri were the high points stressed this morning at the third day of Farmers Week at the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College by Prof. L. A. Weaver of the College of Agriculture, University of Missouri, and J. W. Burch, livestock specialist of the extension division of the College of Agriculture.

Mr. Weaver argued for the raising of the same number of pigs with fewer sows, to lower production costs.

Professor Weaver, considered one of the best authorities on hog production, told the results of the most recent winter hog feeding experiments at the Missouri station, while Mr. Burch used colored slides to demonstrate his talk on sheep. The attendance this morning showed an increase from the past two days and many persons were there for the first time during the four-day farmers short course.

This was livestock day, and Mr. Weaver was to speak on "Feeding Hogs on Pasture," and Mr. Burch on "Producing and Feeding Calves," at this afternoon's session.

Warmth for Small Pigs.

The care of the sow and the small pigs came in for consideration in Mr. Weaver's talk. He told of the necessity of getting the pigs warm as soon as farrowed, and if they were farrowed before assistance could be given, he advised warming them in a box and mentioned using hot bricks for the "warming up" process.

The speaker cautioned against the use of too much bedding immediately after the pigs are farrowed, stating that the important thing is to keep the bedding dry and not so heavy that it prevents the pigs from suckling.

The feeding of the sow after farrowing time was stressed by Mr. Weaver. He advised giving no feed, but plenty of water for twenty-four hours after farrowing. He recommended a ration two weeks after farrowing time, which consisted of 8 parts corn, 4 parts shorts, 1 part bran and 1 part tankage. Up until this time the ration should be increased only gradually and the feed he suggested was wheat bran in the form of a slop.

The ration of corn, shorts, bran and tankage is fairly concentrated, mildly laxative and has the elements to give a good milk supply, besides containing plenty of protein. Mr. Weaver said not to stint the sow during suckling period as this is the time the small pigs make the most economical gains and the progress they make during the suckling period largely determines what gains can be made after they are weaned.

Protein and Mineral Important.

Regarding the sow's ration, Mr. Weaver advocated watching the protein and mineral elements, as these are important. He said that skim milk or dairy by-products are good substitutes for tankage, as they furnish minerals. The minerals to be furnished in the sow's ration in this part of the state are calcium and phosphorus, he said, adding that at the Missouri College of Agriculture they fed the brood sows limestone, bone meal and salt.

Harry Augustine, Maloy Lumber Dealer, Also Accused of Possession of Liquor.

Harry Augustine, a lumber dealer of Maloy, Ia., was arrested by Sheriff L. B. Campbell, Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Heifner and Constable Cabell Childress yesterday on the north edge of Maryville. He was charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated and with possession of liquor.

Compaints were made to the officers that Augustine was driving the car from one side of the road to the other while going through Maryville and was making traffic unsafe.

M. F. A. MEET NEXT WEEK

COUNTY CONVENTION CALLED FOR MARCH 7.

TO VOTE ON MERGER

Officers Also to Be Elected for Ensuing Year.—Meeting in Courthouse Here.

The annual convention of the Missouri Farmers Association of Nodaway county will be held at 1 o'clock the afternoon of March 7 in the circuit court room of the courthouse, according to an announcement today by W. W. A. Needels, president.

Important business will be disposed of at this meeting, according to Mr. Needels' announcement. Officers for the ensuing year are to be elected. Also, "the M. F. A. will decide by ballot whether it will unite with the other farm organizations of Nodaway county in carrying on a program of activities for the betterment of the interests of the farmers," Mr. Needels said.

The proposal to come up for a vote is that of unifying the three farmers organizations of the county into one body, called the United Nodaway County Farmers. A committee from each farm organization has drafted a constitution for this proposed merger and it will be placed before the members of each organization. The members of the Farm Bureau are voting on it by a mail ballot.

Mr. Needels stated also that the meeting will consider any other matters which may be presented. He urgently requests all members to attend.

In order that the M. F. A. meeting may be called promptly at 1 o'clock, it has been suggested, Mr. Needels said, that the women join the men, bringing lunches and serving them in the dining room of the First M. E. Church of Maryville. The women of the church will serve coffee.

M. H. S. Girls Hear Porto Rican Student

Miss Zelmira Biaggi Speaks to Girl Reserve Organizations Yesterday Morning.

The Girl Reserve organizations of the Maryville high school were addressed in a joint meeting yesterday morning by Miss Zelmira Biaggi, a Porto Rican girl, brought to Maryville under the auspices of the State Teachers College Y. W. C. A.

Miss Biaggi told the high school girls of the history of her country, with an explanation of the physical and climatic conditions. She pointed out that Porto Ricans are divided into three classes, first, those of pure blood; second, those engaged as servants; and third, those who live in the country.

"The Porto Ricans love to dance," she said.

Miss Biaggi is a student at Park College.

Miss Evelyn Evans, student at the State Teachers College introduced the speaker.

The meeting was called to order by Emma May Yeo, president of the Junior-Senior Reserves. Devotions were led by Pearl Dougherty.

Sugar Prices Go Up 15 Cents Tomorrow

Denver, Colo., Mar. 1.—Sugar prices will advance 15c per hundred pounds tomorrow, the Great Western sugar company announced today.

DEBATERS TO OPEN SEASON

COLLEGE TEAM ENGAGES PERU HERE TOMORROW.

TWO GROUPS CHOSEN

Negative Trio Into Action First, But Affirmative Team Will Make Two Tours.

Upholding the negative of the question, "Resolved, that the United States should cease to protect by armed force capital invested in foreign lands, except after war has been declared," the State Teachers College debate team, comprised of Leland Medsker, Clyde Roland and Wiley Poleson, will begin the forensic schedule for the year at the College auditorium tomorrow afternoon at 3:20, against the Peru State Teachers of Peru, Nebraska.

Medsker, Roland and Poleson were chosen from a squad of eight candidates recently as the first negative team from the College.

A debate on the same question will be held tonight prior to the scheduled contest. An affirmative team will consist of Fay Woodson Null, Gerald Carroll and Fred Smith, and the negative will be upheld by the same group picked for the Peru contest. This latter debate will be held before the Social Science Club.

The second debate for the local team will be held at Tarkio on March 8 with Tarkio College. The same question will be the issue but the Maryville debaters will this time uphold the affirmative. The Maryville representatives at this event will be Null, Carroll and Smith, the same trio upholding the affirmative in the debate tonight.

Following the Tarkio meeting, the affirmative team will make a tour, debating with William Jewell at Liberty, Baker at Baldwin, Kan., and Central College at Fayette. A second expedition will take the affirmative team into Iowa territory, where they will meet Simpson at Indianola, Penn at Oskaloosa, and Central College at Pella. These debates are on schedule for successive days.

Entry in the extempore and oratorical divisions of the intercollegiate contests to be held at Warrensburg on March 16 has been made by Miss Gladys Criswell, coach. At this event the State Teachers College here will be represented by Clyde Roland and Leland Medsker, Miss Criswell said.

Leaves to Be With Mayor W. O. Garrett

Miss Jennie Garrett left today for Des Moines, Ia., and from there she will go to Rochester, Minn., to be with her brother, Mayor W. O. Garrett, who is recovering from an operation there. A long distance call to Rochester last night revealed that Mr. Garrett is getting along as well as could be expected and that he will undergo a second operation in about three weeks.

M. K. Garrett, a brother, is expected to return to Maryville from Rochester in a few days.

Breeders Elect Dale Bellows President

Dale Bellows of Maryville was elected president of the Central Shorthorn Breeders' association at its meeting held in Kansas City yesterday. Forty-nine bulls were sold at a sale held by the association yesterday. The top price was $700. The top cow price was $350. Stronger prices were reported in the purebred business.

Truck Loaded With Hay Is Destroyed

A truck belonging to Ray Atherton, Elmo, burned near the Cottonwood school, east of Elmo, shortly before noon yesterday. Hay which was being hauled on the truck also was lost. A short circuit in the wiring was thought to have been the cause of the fire.

The hay had been purchased by Mr. Atherton at the George Tibbett sale and it was being moved to Mr. Atherton's place.

The loss was partially covered by insurance.

Too Much Horse Play.

A horse belonging to Almond Adkins, Elmo, died yesterday afternoon. The horse was running and playing in the barnyard when it struck its head on a corner of the barn and dropped dead instantly.

COUNTY HAS ONE BABY ON FEBRUARY 29

Mr. and Mrs. Clint Adams, Wilcox, Announce Birth of a Leap Year Son.

Nodaway county had only one leap year baby, according to reports today.

Mr. and Mrs. Clint Adams, Wilcox, are the parents of the infant. It is a boy and will be called Billy Duncan. He arrived at 10:30 p. m.

"I won't have to buy many birthday presents, anyway," C. J. Duncan, the child's grandfather, declared today.

Billy Duncan will have to wait four years to celebrate his first "birthday."

FEBRUARY A MILD MONTH

TEMPERATURE 10.6 DEGREES ABOVE NORMAL.

PLENTY OF SUNSHINE

Thermometer Operates in Range of 3 to 66 Degrees.—Not Much Snowfall.

February was an unusually mild and spring-like month, according to the monthly report of J. R. Brink, official weather observer for Maryville.

The mean temperature for the month just closed was 34.7 degrees, as compared with a term mean of 24.1, or 10.6 degrees above the normal February temperature.

Mr. Brink looked back over his records and found that Februaries for the last eleven years had had temperatures above normal, which apparently would bear out the contention of some of the "old timers" that winters aren't so severe as they used to be. But this may be upset next year.

The highest temperature recorded in the February just closed was 66 on the 11th and the lowest was 3 above zero on the 18th. The highest February temperature on record was 74 in 1922, while the lowest was 28 below zero in 1899.

Precipitation last month was 2.22 inches, which included both rain and melted snow. The snowfall was 1¼ inches. The greatest amount of February precipitation on Mr. Brink's records was 4.22 inches in 1911, and the record February snowfall was 30 inches in 1912.

February, 1928, had fifteen clear days, four partly cloudy and ten cloudy.

PRICE HIKES ON GASOLINE ARE GENERAL

All Sections of Country Report Advances Recently.—Cheap in Buffalo, However.

New York, March 1.—Gasoline prices were advanced in many parts of the country this week, a United Press survey reveals today.

Although no reason was given for the upward trend it was shown that the following localities were affected:

New England and Toledo, Ohio, up 2 cents to 17 cents.

St. Paul and Buffalo, up 2 cents to 18 cents.

Denver, now 18 cents including 3 cent tax. Was 15 cents earlier in the winter during a price war.

Dallas, Tex., up 4 cents to 19 cents, including 3 cent state tax.

Gasoline in Indiana was advanced 3 cents to 19.2 cents a gallon today.

In Illinois the retail price of gasoline dropped two cents when the state supreme court invalidated the state tax. The price is now 16 cents in Chicago and most of Illinois.

Buffalo reported that independent dealers there were selling gasoline for 12 and 13 cents a gallon.

STANDARD OIL EARNINGS CUT

DEMORALIZATION OF INDUSTRY IN 1927 IS BLAMED.

STEWART RE-ELECTED

Rockefeller Abstains From Voting on Chairman Involved in Oil Deal.

Chicago, March 1.—Col. Robert W. Stewart was re-elected chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana today without the support of the John D. Rockefeller interests.

Apparently because of Colonel Stewart's refusal to answer certain questions before the Senate Teapot Dome committee at Washington recently, John D. Rockefeller, jr., notified the stockholders meeting today at Whiting, Ind., a Chicago suburb, that he desired not to vote on Stewart as chairman.

Rockefeller's letter added that the Rockefeller foundation had issued similar instructions regarding the voting of its stock. Stock listed in the name of Rockefeller and the foundation, however, was voted in favor of re-election of the other eight directors.

Stewart Pleased.

Stewart said after the meeting he was "very much gratified by the results."

Earnings Cut in Half.

Chicago, Mar. 1.—Demoralization of the oil industry in 1927 cut the net earnings of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana almost in half, the annual report of the board of directors to the stockholders revealed today.

The report was read by Col. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board, at the annual stockholders' meeting at Whiting, Ind., a suburb, this afternoon.

Net earnings, before taxes, in 1927 amounted to $33,197,456 in 1927 compared with $62,598,764 in 1926, the report showed, although the company sold 1,586,271 barrels more petroleum in 1927 than in 1926, and employed 2,600 fewer persons.

Despite reduced earnings and the frankly recognized demoralization of the industry, "the present position of the company is exceptionally strong," the report said.

Heavy loss was occasioned, it was explained, "by the large carry over of the petroleum products inventory of Dec. 31, 1926, at prices in excess of realization during 1927."

Pays Dividends, However.

Total assets in 1927 were $462,605,840.81, compared with $446,496,863.29 in 1926. Net earnings amounted to $3.26 a share compared with $6.03 in 1926—a profit in 1927 of 7.39 per cent on invested capital.

The company was able to pay its regular quarterly dividends of 62½ cents a share and an extra dividend of 25 cents despite the condition of the industry "because of increased efficiency, economies of operation and the loyal and enthusiastic cooperation of employes," the report said.

Number of shares of stock outstanding was listed at 9,231,540, owned by 55,470 persons.

The Sinclair Pipe Line Company alone of all the Standards of Indiana's subsidiaries showed increased earnings last year, the report showed. Midwest Refining, Dixie Oil and Superla Laboratories, inc., showed the effect of the condition of the oil industry.

Preliminary reports from the associated Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Company also showed decrease in earnings, the report said.

Los Angeles Leaves Cuba for Home Base

Dirigible's Start Delayed by Reports of Bad Weather.—To Watch for Missing Plane.

Washington, Mar. 1.—The dirigible Los Angeles left her mooring mast on the naval tender Potoka in Cuban waters at 10:43 a. m., today and headed northward for her home base at Lakehurst, N. J., the Navy Department was advised. She had been moored to the Patoka mast temporarily because of previous reports of unfavorable weather around Lakehurst.

The Los Angeles has been ordered to keep a sharp lookout for three navy aviators lost on a flight from Hampton Roads, Va., to Annapolis, Md., on Monday. She is expected to reach Lakehurst about noon tomorrow.

Lakehurst headquarters notified the dirigible that docking conditions would be favorable there tomorrow night, but advised watching weather reports for any change in this forecast.

Democrats Not to Permit Half Votes

National Committee to Stand By Original Decision Frowning on Split Ballots.

Washington, March 1.—Democratic national committee sources indicated today the committee would stand by its original call for the Houston convention which would bar so-called "half votes" in the convention.

Adherence to this principle would require Missouri to have 36 whole votes or delegates instead of 72 now chosen under the half-vote scheme. It was said that the half vote plan, while not especially serious, had a tendency to disrupt convention arrangements.

DENSE WOODS HIDE SANDINO

NICARAGUAN REBEL RETREATS FOLLOWING AMBUSH.

MACHINE GUNS USED

Deadly Fire Directed at U. S. Marines in Surprise Attack.—Brings Total Deaths to 21.

Managua, Nicaragua, Mar. 1.—The densely wooded regions of the Nueva Segova country today protected General Augustina Sandino, rebel leader, whose most recent ambushing attack resulted in the deaths of five United States marines and injury to eight others.

The marine casualties occurred Monday when a patrol, under command of Lieut. Edward F. O'Day, marched into a rebel machine gun nest.

This brought the total of marine deaths, since United States occupation started, to twenty-one.

Ideal Spot Selected.

The spot selected for the ambushing attack was ideal for the Sandino strategy. It was near a Rancho, known as Daraili, midway between Ocotal and Jinotega. Dense bush surrounded the location.

Lieutenant O'Day's column, including 36 men and 85 animals, had just completed accompanying a pack train to Conedga. They were without the heavy pack load on the return journey.

Near the Rancho the surprise attack started. Resorting to his favorite strategy, Sandino's men directed a deadly fire of machine guns which had been set in ambush. The fire raked the ranks of the marines and momentarily threw them off guard.

Before the marines could recover from the surprise of the attack, the Sandino forces dismounted their guns and retreated into the heavily wooded country.

Loss Greatest Since Dec. 30.

It was the greatest loss received by the entire forces since December 30 when five marines were killed and more than twenty injured at Quilali, when the Sandino soldiers staged a surprise attack. At that time the Sandino raiders were repulsed with heavy casualties.

Information here was uncertain whether any of the Sandinistas were killed in the Monday attack.

For weeks the marine patrols have been accompanying pack trains into the Nuevo Segova district in order to lay in supplies to tide over the rainy period when many of the roads through the region are inaccessible.

Low on Ammunition.

Native sources today reported that General Sandino was running low on ammunition and that he would not engage in any open warfare with the marines, preferring to use his remaining ammunition in brief surprise attacks.

The ambushing attack Monday set at rest reports that General Sandino was abandoning the Nueva Segova district. Two rebels were captured recently and said that Sandino had planned to abandon his frontier. Their statements were discounted in the belief they had been placed for capture in order to give misleading statements to the United States marine officers.

Farmer Objects to Airplanes Overhead

Lincoln, Neb., Mar. 1.—Emil Glatt, who has filed legal objection to airplanes flying over his farm, was ready to push his case in court today.

Late yesterday Glatt, with his attorneys, attorneys for Roy Page, and the District Judge stood on Glatt's farm to determine to what extent the planes frightened stock and caused disturbance.

Glatt's farm borders on the flying field operated by Page. Glatt seeks $10,000 damages for the noise made by airplanes.

$160,000 GIFT BY SINCLAIR

$100,000 ADDITIONAL ADVANCED TO REPUBLICAN PARTY.

WILL HAYS TESTIFIES

Former G. O. P. Chairman Denies, However, That He Has Any Knowledge of Oil Deal.

Washington, March 1.—Harry Sinclair, indicted oil magnate, advanced $260,000 in government bonds to help pay off the Republican campaign deficit of 1921, Will H. Hays, former chairman of the Republican national committee, revealed to the Senate Teapot Dome committee today.

Of this amount, Hays said he gave $100,000 back to Sinclair later. The difference of $160,000 was Sinclair's personal campaign contribution, he said.

Hays said he did not know whether the bonds were those of the mysterious Continental Trading Company. He said he had never heard of the Continental concern until recently, and that no record was kept of the serial numbers of the bonds.

$75,000 of Bonds Traced.

Senator Walsh of Montana has said that the committee traced $75,000 of Continental bonds to the Republican national committee.

After outlining the efforts to liquidate the $1,200,000 campaign deficit, Hays said in a written statement to the committee:

"Among those to whom I appealed for contributions was Harry F. Sinclair. I explained the situation to Sinclair, told him of the assistance which had been given by others, assured him that we would be able to obtain the requisite funds if we could have a certain amount of time and asked him if, before he sailed for Europe, he could help us to tide over the period.

"He replied that he would make a personal contribution which he thought should not exceed $75,000. He also said he would turn over to us approximately $185,000 in government bonds in addition to his contribution for use as might become necessary, upon my assurance that he would be repaid total amount advanced in excess of the $75,000 contribution.

Both in Government Bonds.

"Both the $75,000 and the $185,000 were, I think, in government bonds.

"A portion of the $185,000 of government bonds was used as hereinafter stated and this advancement, along with contributions by many others, enabled the treasurer to announce to the committee at the December meeting that the indebtedness was provided for.

"So far as I know, no record was made of the numbers of those bonds or even of their particular issue.

"Seventy-five thousand dollars of the bonds constituting Mr. Sinclair's personal contribution were applied on the committee's indebtedness to Empire Trust Company, through the chairman of its board, Gen. T. Coleman Dupont.

"Fifty thousand dollars of the original $185,000 received from Sinclair were returned by me to Sinclair.

"Of the remaining $135,000, I delivered to John T. Pratt, of New York, to the best of my recollection, $50,000, at about which time he placed in the hands of committee $50,000 in addition to amounts he previously contributed. Later I asked Pratt to add that sum to his previous contribution.

Returned to Sinclair.

"To this he agreed and delivered to me $50,000 in government bonds but I had no knowledge as to whether they were the same bonds I had previously delivered to him. These bonds, in any case, were given by me to Sinclair.

"Of the approximately $85,000 remaining, I delivered $25,000 to Secretary John W. Weeks of Boston (late Secretary of War), to be used by him in his efforts to raise money for the deficit and they were used by him for that purpose.

"The approximately $60,000 remaining I delivered to Fred W. Upham of Chicago for the same purpose and they

ABOUT DIRECT BUYING.

Editor Maryville Democrat-Forum

A member company of the Institute of American Meat Packers has directed our attention to an article headed "Fight Direct Sale of Pigs," which appeared in the February 14 issue of the Maryville Democrat-Forum. Your article quotes another newspaper to the effect that direct buying reduces competition in public markets, and has been responsible for the decline in hog prices.

We believe that it is erroneous to state that buying competition has left the central markets as a result of direct marketing.

It would be as logical to argue that the decrease in the hog supply at the central markets which results from direct marketing tends actually to increase prices.

The plain fact is, however, that hog prices are determined by the total supply of hogs and the total demand for hogs (as influenced by the demand from consumers for pork), and not by the place or method of purchase.

Those who say that direct selling by the producer reduces the demand for hogs at the central markets seem to overlook the fact that, when farmers sell their animals at home, the supply at the central markets is reduced accordingly, and that the reduction in the one automatically offsets the reduction in the other.

We should like to point out that decrease in hog prices during 1927 was due entirely to economic factors in the meat trade, and was in no way caused by the direct marketing.

Pork products began to decline early in the winter and there was scarcely a month during the whole year that pork products on hand at the close of the month were worth as much per pound as at the beginning. The declines which naturally followed in the price of hogs were not the results of direct buying, as has been claimed.

Live stock production in Europe was at the peak and the demand from the countries there which normally are the chief foreign customers for American pork products slackened materially. As a result, the volume of the export trade was the smallest in more than a decade and its value dropped off more than $50,000,000 during the year. This decline was equivalent to almost a dollar a head on every hog dressed under federal inspection, but undoubtedly the most important result was that millions of pounds of meat were thrown on an already sluggish domestic market. This together with an increase of 7 per cent in the number of hogs slaughtered under federal inspection during the year as compared with 1926, depressed severely the prices of pork products, and in that way, influenced hog prices.

The fact that approximately a third of the hogs are now sold direct would indicate that, in the opinions of a substantial percentage of producers, direct marketing is sound. Packers buy direct because producers choose to sell direct. If these producers were not satisfied with the prices which they obtain in selling direct, it is obvious that they would market their live stock in some other way.

We venture the hope that you will give space to these facts, so that your readers may have this additional information about direct marketing.

Yours very truly,
Department of Public Relations and Trade, Institute of American Meat Packers.

Kansas City, Mo., Mar. 1.—Kansas City Republicans went to the polls today to vote in the primaries. The election was being held for the purpose of selecting delegates to a county and congressional convention March 6.

The Campaign Log

The Tammany delegation to the Democratic National Convention was selected, with Senators Royal S. Copeland and Robert F. Wagner not chosen. Several of the delegates formerly lived in the South.

Senator James A. Reed in Los Angeles urged for a return to honesty in government.

Representative Cramton, Republican, Michigan, defended the dry policy of Secretary of Commerce Hoover in the House of Representatives. He took issue with the attack made by Representative Tillson, Democrat, Arkansas, who said that Hoover in answering the Borah questionnaire had been evasive.

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, vice-chairman of the Democratic National Committee, told the Women's National Democratic Club in Washington that party platforms were a bore and should be abolished.

Petitions qualifying Herbert Hoover as a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination at the preferential primaries, were filed in Michigan.

J. E. Hanway, Casper, Wyo., publisher, predicted in Washington that Secretary of Commerce Hoover would have the solid support of Wyoming's delegation at the Republican National Convention.

A petition asking that Governor Alfred E. Smith's name be entered on the primary election ballot was filed with the Secretary of State of North Dakota.

The ninth congressional district Republicans in Missouri will send two delegates to the Republican National convention instructed for Frank O. Lowden.

were used by him for that purpose.

"Consequently, I lacked approximately $85,000 with which to repay Sinclair the entire $185,000. I felt bound to reimburse Sinclair in full and I did so, hoping at the same time that I could get some further help later from others, but this did not materialize.

Voluntarily Gives $85,000.

"I had suffered financial losses of which Sinclair knew. He did not feel that I should bear this burden personally and he voluntarily returned the $85,000 of securities which I had caused to be delivered to him.

"These securities did not comprise any of the government bonds originally delivered by Sinclair to me. The securities which he returned were the identical securities which I sent to him.

"I simply had not succeeded in raising the entire amount and made it up personally with securities which bore no relation whatever to the bonds with which the committee is now concerned.

"This last transaction had not taken place when I testified before this committee in 1924 that according to my recollection Sinclair's contribution in making up the deficit did not exceed $75,000. But after that time, for the reasons already mentioned, he assumed the $85,000, which I had proferred to make good my assurance to him that he would be reimbursed in full.

"He, therefore, should now be credited with a personal contribution of $75,000 and an additional $85,000 which he felt I ought not be called on to pay.

Predicts Flood Bill Will Be Passed Soon

Washington, Mar. 1.—Passage within the next two weeks and possibly within a shorter time of his flood control bill, which the Senate received yesterday from its commerce committee, was forecast today by Chairman Jones of the committee following a conference with President Coolidge.

Imperative need for immediate flood legislation will bring necessary support to the measure, Chairman Jones said.

PLAN DAIRIES YEAR AHEAD

BREEDER MUST LOOK TO FUTURE, EXPERT SAYS.

NEED MORE THAN PAIL

Contagious Abortion and Summer Feeding of Cows Discussed at College Yesterday.

The success of the dairyman depends upon his planning his feeding and breeding for two or three years ahead, C. F. Stephens, specialist of the extension division of the Missouri College of Agriculture said in closing the afternoon session yesterday of the second day of Farmers Week, which is being held at the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College.

Mr. Stephens concluded the meeting on dairying after a tour of the dairy and swine herds and the chicken farm of the State Teachers ollege had been conducted earlier in the afternoon by R. A. Kinnaird and C. H. Withington of the College agriculture department. Mr. Stephens said he was pleased with the dairy herd which has been started at the College here and predicted a fancy dairy development here in seven or eight years.

Prevention of contagious abortion in dairy cows occupied the most of Mr. Stephens' afternoon discussion. He advised sending to market all cows infected with the disease unless a person has a herd of purebred animals.

Three Steps Advised.

In this case he advised three steps, blood tests, isolation, burning of all discharges from abortive animals and the disinfection of the stalls where the animast have been kept. These precautions were recommended because he said there are no known cures for contagious abortion, although many medicines are advertised.

Where abortion appears is scrub or grade herds the most practical methods would be to sell off the infected cows and start over again.

Mr. Stephens cited statistics where records were kept for a period of eleven years in Connecticut with abortive and non-abortive cows. The animals with the infections made $40 less per year than the other group. Some drastic precautions must be taken to prevent the spread of contagious abortion, as the loss each year is immense, Mr. Stephens said, the lowest authoritative estimate being 25 million dollars a year.

The speaker stressed utmost care when buying dairy cows to prevent the spread of the disease in a herd. To insure this protection against buying a cow which is infected, the blood test was highly recommended. A retest of the cows in a herd where abortion is prevalent was advised and other tests taken for three or five months, as some of the affected animals might not react to the blood test the first time. A sample of the blood may be sent to the Missouri College of Agriculture or he recommended the taking of blood samples of an infected herd by a veterinarian.

Spread by Contact.

Mr. Stephens said that the seat of the abortion germ may either be in the udder or uterus. The disease is spread by other animals coming in contact with the discharge of an infected animal. Some animals may abort two or three months after breeding, but the average is the fifth or seventh month. At the latter two periods when it is noted a cow is going to abort, Mr. Stephens advised confinement in a separate stall and then the burning of the discharge after the abortion. To prevent the further spread of the disease, he advised the isolation of the animals infected.

There has been controversy as to whether a bull can spread the disease, but it generally has been accepted that the male will not spread the disease through service. He advised confining the bull and not letting him run with the herd. Mr. Stephens said that having the disease doesn't make the cow immune.

He devoted a few minutes to summer feeding of dairy cows, saying that the object is to hold the production to the highest level during lactation. Feeding of grain on pasture was recommended for cows giving two and a half to three gallons daily. A ration of 5 parts corn, 2 bran and ½ to 1 cotton seed meal was given.

The trouble comes during the drouthy months after July, when the pastures burn out, Mr. Stephens said, and he said the best feed to hold up production is roughage of sweet clover. However, when sweet clover can't be obtained, sudan grass is used in places.

The opinion was held at one time that the only requisite for going into the dairying business was a cow and milk pail. This has been proven false and these are many phases and problems to consider before it can be placed on a paying operation, he commented.

Mr. Kinnaird announced that all Farmers Week visitors could obtain tickets from him for the motion picture show which will be given tonight at the College auditorium.

Miss Zelmira Baiggi, a student at Park College who spent two days here giving talks at the State Teachers College left this morning for Parkville.

Music Work of Miss Dietz Again Praised

Miss Margaret Dietz, music director of the city schools of Merrill, Wis., received much praise for an operetta presented recently at Merrill by the high school orchestra and glee clubs. Miss Dietz is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Dietz of this city.

A copy of the Merrill paper says:

"To Miss Margaret Dietz, music director of the city schools, must go much of the credit for presenting so excellent an operetta, with such a large cast. Over one hundred students took part, and those in attendance could readily appreciate the amount of work done by Miss Dietz.

"The large audience was greatly pleased with the talent and ability of the young actors. The operetta was 'Pickles' a funny and highly delightful selection.

"The orchestra, too, must be praised, for the number of selections played by them, and the artistry displayed, was excellent, to say the very least."

Curio Found Here Is Said to Be Valuable

Ulysses Lloyd Offered Large Sum for Stone, He Says, But Won't Sell It.

A milk-white rectangular stone picked up in an old ravine two miles northeast of here by Ulysses Lloyd of Maryville, and worn by him as a watch-charm, has turned out to be worth a large sum of money, he says. An eastern man recently offered to purchase the curio, but Lloyd says that it is not for sale, and that he is going to ask the Smithsonian Institute to classify it for him.

For many years Lloyd has been a curio seeker. He has paid many trips to the ravine, where he has gathered many articles for his collection, which includes bones of prehistoric animals, fish, Indian relics and old stones. Indeed, he says, he spends most of his time hunting curios along the banks of the streams and in old ravines.

The white stone has a narrow rim similar to amber, and is so hard that Lloyd had to send it to St. Louis to have a hole bored in it, as drills of local jewelers were not sufficiently powerful to do the work. The stone is an inch wide and an inch and a half long, and is in a crude state. The easterner who offered to buy it had seen it on a trip here.

Mr. and Mrs. William Todd and daughter, of Polo, will be new residents of Maryville soon. Mr. Todd went to work as a barber at the White Palace Barber shop yesterday. He formerly was employed at the Tulloch Barber shop here.

KENNETH SPOTSWOODE, a manufacturer
LOUIS MANNIX, an importer

THE STORY THUS FAR

Vance's theory is that two unknown persons were in Margaret Odell's apartment that fatal evening; one hiding in a clothes closet, the other the man who strangled her. In no way can the police account for the presence of anyone in the apartment. The door to the alley was bolted on the inside and the man who had gone out with the "Canary" the night before had been the only one to be seen with her, and circumstances completely eliminated him. There is another man who called while she was out, but one of the phone operators testifies that he had been unable to get in the apartment.

CHAPTER 13

An ugly light came into Heath's eyes.

"We've got ways," he said through his teeth, "of getting damn interesting conversation outa people who haven't no great reputation for repartee."

Vance sighed. "How the Four Hundred needs you, my Sergeant!"

Markham looked at his watch.

"I've got pressing work at the office," he said, "and all this talk isn't getting us anywhere." He put his hand on Heath's shoulder. "I leave you to go ahead. This afternoon I'll have these people brought down to my office for another questioning—maybe I can jog their memories a bit . . . You've got some line of investigation planned?"

"The usual routine," replied Heath drearily. "I'll go through Odell's papers, and I'll have three or four of my men check up on her."

"You'd better get after the Yellow Taxicab company right away," Markham suggested. "Find out, if you can, who the man was who left here at half past eleven last night, and where he went.

"Do you imagine for one moment," asked Vance, "that if this man knew anything about the murder, he would have stopped in the hall and asked the operator to call a taxi for him?"

"Oh, I don't look for much in that direction." Markham's tone was almost listless. "But the girl may have said something to him that'll give us a lead."

Vance shook his head facetiously. "O welcome pure-ey'd Faith, white-handed Hope, thou hovering angel, girt with golden wings!"

Markham was in no mood for chaffing. He turned to Heath and spoke with forced cheeriness.

"Call me up later this afternoon. I may get some new evidence out of the outfit we've just interviewed. . . . And," he added, "be sure to put a man on guard here. I want this apartment kept just as it is until we see a little more light."

"I'll attend to that," Heath assured him.

Markham and Vance and I went out and entered the car. A few minutes later we were winding rapidly across town through Central Park.

"Recall our recent conversation about footprints in the snow asked Vance, as we emerged into Fifth Avenue and headed south.

Markham nodded abstractedly.

"As I remember," mused Vance, "in the hypothetical case you presented there were not only footprints but a dozen or more witnesses—including a youthful prodigy—who saw a figure of some kind cross the hibernal landscape. . . . Here you are in a most beastly pother because of the dishearteuin' fact that there are neither footprints in the snow nor witnesses who saw a fleeing figure. In short, you are bereft of both direct and circumstantial evidence. . . Sad, sad."

He wagged his head dolefully.

"Y' know, Markham, it appears to me that the testimony in this case constitutes conclusive legal proof that no one could have been with the deceased at the hour of her passing, and that, ergo, she is presumably alive. The strangled body of the lady is, I take it, simply an irrelevant circumstance from the standpoint of legal procedure. I know that you learned lawyers won't admit a murder without a body; but how, in sweet Heaven's name, do you get around a corpus delicti without a murder?"

"You're talking nonsense," Markham rebuked him, with a show of anger.

"Oh, quite," agreed Vance. "And yet, it's a distressin' thing for a lawyer not to have footprints of some kind, isn't it, old dear? It leaves one so up in the air."

Suddenly Markham swung round. "You, of course, don't need footprints, or any other kind of material clues," he flung at Vance tauntingly. "You have powers of divination such as are denied ordinary mortals. If I remember correctly, you informed me, somewhat grandiloquently, that, knowing the nature and conditions of a crime, you could lead me infallibly to the culprit, whether he left footprints or not. You recall that boast? . . . Well, here's a crime, and the perpetrator left no footprints coming or going. Be so good as to end my suspense by confiding in me who killed the Odell girl."

Vance's serenity was not ruffled by Markham's ill-humored challenge. He sat smoking lazily for several minutes; then he leaned over and flicked his cigaret ash out of the window.

"'Pon my word, Markham," he joined evenly, "I'm half inclined to look into this silly murder. I think I'll wait, though, and see whom the nonplussed Heath turns up with his inquiries."

Markham grunted scoffingly, and sank back on the cushions.

"Your generosity wrings me," he said.

(Tuesday, Sept. 11; afternoon)

On our way down-town that morning we were delayed for a considerable time in the traffic congestion just north of Madison Square, and Markham anxiously looked at his watch.

"It's past noon," he said. "I think I'll stop at the club and have a bite of lunch. . . . I presume that eating at this early hour would be too plebeian for so exquisite a hothouse flower as you."

Vance considered the invitation.

"Since you deprived me of my breakfast," he decided, "I'll permit you to buy me some eggs Benedictine."

A few minutes later we entered the almost empty grill of the Stuyvesant Club, and took a table near one of the windows looking southward over the treetops of Madison Square.

Shortly after we had given our order a uniformed attendant entered and, bowing deferentially at the district attorney's elbow, held out an unaddressed communication sealed in one of the club's envelopes. Markham read it with an expression of growing curiosity, and as he studied the signature a look of mild surprise came into his eyes. At length he looked up and nodded to the waiting attendant. Then, excusing himself, he left us abruptly. It was fully twenty minutes before he returned.

"Funny thing," he said. "That note was from the man who took the Odell woman to dinner and the theater last night. . . . . A small world," he mused. "He's staying here at the club—he's a non-resident member and makes it his headquarters when he's in town."

"You know him?" Vance put the question disinterestedly.

"I've met him several times—chap named Spotswoode." Markham seemed perplexed. "He's a man of family, lives in a country house on Long Island, and is regarded generally as a highly respectable member of society—one of the last persons I'd suspect of being mixed up with the Odell girl. But according to his own confession, he played around a good deal with her during his visits to New York—'sowing a few belated wild oats,' as he expressed it—and last night took her to Francelle's for dinner and to the Winter Garden afterwards."

"Not my idea of an intellectual, or even edifyin', evening," commented Vance. "And he selected a deuced unlucky day for it . . . I say, imagine opening the morning paper and learning that your petite dame of the evening before had been strangled! Disconcertin' what?"

"He's certainly disconcerted," said Markham. "The early afternoon papers were out about an hour ago, and he'd been phoning my office every ten minutes, when I suddenly walked in here. He's afraid his connection with the girl will leak out and disgrace him."

"And won't it?"

"I hardly see the necessity. No one knows who her escort was last evening; and since he obviously had nothing to do with the crime, what's to be gained by dragging him into it? He told me the whole story, and offered to stay in the city as long as I wanted him to."

"I infer, from the cloud of disappointment that enveloped you when you returned just now that his story held nothing hopeful for you in the way of clues."

"No." Markham admitted. "The girl apparently never spoke to him of her intimate affairs; and he couldn't give me a single helpful suggestion. His account of what happened last night agreed perfectly with Jessup's. He called for the girl at seven, brought her home at about eleven, stayed with her half an hour or so, and then left her.

"When he heard her call for help he was frightened, but on being assured by her there was nothing wrong, he concluded she had dozed off into a nightmare, and thought no more about it.

"He drove direct to the club here, arriving about ten minutes to twelve. Judge Redfern, who saw him descend from the taxi, insisted on his coming up-stairs and playing poker with some men who were waiting in the judge's rooms for him. They played until three o'clock this morning."

"Working in a damp place gave me rheumatism so badly I could hardly get around. My joints and knuckles were swollen badly and every muscle in my body seemed to ache. I tried 'St. Jacob's Oil' and got relief almost instantly. Today, thanks to that wonderful oil, I work eight hours a day in all kinds of weather without a bit of trouble."

Good old "St. Jacob's Oil" certainly does knock the pains and aches of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuritis, and Neuralgia. It penetrates directly to the affected parts and draws out all the pain and misery, and it doesn't burn the skin. Just try a small trial bottle which you can get from your druggist.

STOP THE FAT AND GET THIN

The way to reduction is to stop the formation of fat. Modern science has found that way—by turning your food into fuel and energy—by supplying a natural element that helps do that. It is much better than starvation. That modern, scientific method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. Now the results in slender figures, new beauty and vitality, are seen everywhere.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. So you know the effects are beneficial, and why they all occur. Learn what so many have learned in 20 years about it. Do it now. Ask your druggist for a $1 box of Marmola and learn what it means to you.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

the small pigs confined after farrowing.

Winter feeding of pigs has proven just as economical as summer feeding, Professor Weaver stated, although the belief has been held that summer feeding was more economical. He stated that experiments at the Minnesota station had proven the value of winter feeding and then explained mimeographed copies of an experiment conducted over a period of two years at the Missouri station on winter feeding. It was the first time that the results of the experiment had been made public, Mr. Weaver said. The results will be published in tomorrow's issue of the Democrat-Forum.

For Better Lambs.

Five points to follow to raise the standard of Missouri lamb flocks were given by Mr. Burch as follows:

1. Pure bred ram.
2. Winter care of ewes.
3. Time of lambing.
4. Docking and casterating.
5. Creep feed grain.

Mr. Burch said that from the standpoint of wool production there is no chance of overproduction but there is a possibility of over production of fat lambs. However, he said there is no chance of this if the quality of lamb which the packer wants is maintained.

Startling figures showing what a small proportion of lamb and mutton is eaten per capita in United States compared with pork and beef were given by Mr. Burch.

In 1923 each person ate an average of 80 pounds of pork annually, 75 pounds of beef and 5 pounds of lamb and mutton.

Early Marketing Advised.

Feeding of legumes during the winter to ewes plays a big part in the size of the lamb, he said. Early marketing of Missouri lambs was advocated as the price peaks are reached in May and and June and then slump from $2 to $3 in July and August. Also the stomach worm begins its work in the hot summer months and this pest will not have to be contended with if the lambs are sold by this time.

Fat lambs are a necessity if good prices are to be obtained and to insure a fat lamb Mr. Burch urged creep feeding of grain. Start the lambs when they are about two weeks on, on bran and corn meal and when 6 weeks old feed them shelled corn, shelled oats and linseed oil meal, he advised.

Reed Resumes Attack in California Speech

Missourian Addresses Large Democratic Meeting in Los Angeles, Flaying G. O. P.

Los Angeles, Cal., Mar. 1.—Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, resumed his western campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination here last night with another attack on Republican administration.

Before a large Democratic meeting in the Olympic auditorium, the Missouri senator charged the Coolidge administration with violation of state's rights, inefficient handling of foreign relations and a "concentration of power in Washington that could result only in corruption."

"I appeal to all Democrats," Reed said, "for a return of honesty in government and for the re-establishment of the old Democratic doctrine."

Final Grain Review.

Chicago, Mar. 1.—Private crop and farm reserve reports upset all grains on the Chicago board of trade today and caused erratic price movements in an extremely nervous market. Oats was the only grain to show any stability, the tone remaining consistently strong and the close standing unchanged to ⅝c higher.

The close caught wheat at the start of one of its erratic dips and final figures were ⅜c off to ½c higher. Corn declined steadily from mid-session on and closed ⅞c to 1c lower.

Provisions closed higher.

Private estimates of wheat reserves on farms were bullish but about as expected and the market sold off immediately after their publication. Toward mid-session, however, losses were regained, and the market sank into dullness, which prevailed through most of the later hours. Southwest wheat still lacks moisture but there was no other news. Receipts were 23 cars and the cash market held unchanged.

Corn crop estimates were also bullish but the trade was of the opinion that the news had already been discontinued by recent declines. There was considerable selling on this sentiment. Part of the losses were recovered, however, when the wheat market firmed. Heavy receipts of 539 cars depressed the cash market ½c and helped to prevent a rally.

Oats gave signs of awakening and held its gains exceptionally well. The private reports placed farm reserves at the lowest figures in many years and there was good buying by all interests. Receipts were heavy at 66 cars but the cash market held unchanged.

Eggs: Receipts, 11,430; firsts, 27c; ordinaries, 26c; seconds, 24½c.

Carl King Wins in Cross Country Run

R. Smith Is Close Second After 2½ Mile Race—Winner's Time 13 Min. 9 Sec.

Leading a field of seventeen entries, Carl King won a two and one-half mile cross country run at the State Teachers College yesterday afternoon, stepping off the distance in thirteen minutes and nine seconds.

R. Smith, brother of Cecil Smith, Ridgeway high school star, in charge of the winter quarter tracksters, came in second and Raymond Moore, third.

Smith and King completed the last lap in a tight race for first place, but King forged ahead near the close and crossed the finish line fully seven yards ahead of his nearest competitor. The first two were about two hundred yards ahead of the rest of the field, which was greatly scattered, coming in by pairs.

Cecil Smith said that a second cross country would probably be run soon.

The following are those who ran yesterday's race, named in the order in which they came in: Carl King, R. Smith, R. Moore, E. Crane, D. Mast, R. Westfall, P. Tilley, D. Donaldson, W. Culp, J. Gray, C. Pugh, F. Hall, H. Braun, J. Smith, W. Max and T. Scott in tie, M. Pettigrew.

Drugs Excite the Kidneys, Drink Water

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.
